that struck Elba last Thursday afternoon caused damage in a number of areas, mostly downed trees and power lines with some roof damage. One small storage house was destroyed by fire attributed to the lightening.

However, Mrs. Louise Morgan probably suffered the greatest damage and yet can be the most thankful for her narrow escape! A bolt of lightening apparently struck a large oak tree in her yard, ran down a tree limb to the house and jumped to the roof from the hanging limb. The jolt knocked a hole in the roof of the frame house and actually knocked a screen door and the wooden door hinges from the wall.
Splinters from the shattered

By the time our readers get this paper Skylab will be on the ground (or in the water) according to the experts keeping track of it since 1973. The 77-ton monster was manned three times during its life and orbited the earth many thousands of times. If these experts hopes' turn into reality, then the big chunks of metal will all fall harmlessly into the ocean. We didn't buy Skylab helmets, the repellant nor the special Skylab insurance but we share the hopes that it will fall harmlessly into the water . .

President Carter cancelled a major speech planned to announce solutions to the energy problems of the nation as well as the economic woes. For this change of plans he was highly criticized, but not by ye ole editor. We have seen politicians make big speeches before when they didn't have their ducks in a row and the net results was worse than if the politician had kept his mouth shut. It is obvious from the steady stream of advisors trouping to Camp David to meet with Carter that there is no clearcut, sure solution to the complex problems facing us. If, by taking the extra time, he can find a working solution to relieve our most pressing needs, then we should pat the ole peanut-picker on the back rather than bowling him over with criticism for his "indecision".

We were openly disgusted when President Somoza of Nicaragua announced he would meet the demands to resign if the United States would meat certain conditions. Well, ye ole editor thinks the good ole U.S. has made too many deals already and would quickly tell Somoza where to go with his "deal" and in the meantime to be careful he didn't get hog'tied, blindfolded and shot, as his troops have been accused of doing to suspected

The Elba City Council unanimously named Charles Kennett to a vancancy on the City Council, as had been expected. Members of the Council had talked with Kennett weeks ago about filling the expected opening and reported that after several talkings he finally agreed. We admire Kennett and feel his varied and extensive business experience will be beneficial to the Elba city

Ye ole editor forgot to attend an annual meeting of Country Club stockholders Monday night but it turned out OK. I shared the opinion of all those who mentioned the proposed deal to sell some lots from the club property, and planned to be there and strongly voice my opposition. Well, I didn't go; but for once the majority thought as I did on something. This is the second time the idea has been voted down and hopefully it is now dead.

An opinion by the National Weather Bureau has cut in half the number of hurricanes we will get this year and every year in the future. Of course they have added an equal number of he-icanes. No longer will all the storms be named after women; men will contribute half the names. This is supposed to cut down on discriminating against men, but still they used the woman's name first! Maybe next year they will start with a man's name 'cause we sure must be fair with this thing.

Things are not awful bad in this country when one our major concerns is the naming of a storm.

HISTORY OF HEBRON BAPTIST CHURCH

Albert L. Stroxier

Hebron Missionary Baptist Church is located in the extreme Northera action of Coffee County Alabama on a paved county road about one-half mile West of Highway 87, the Elba-Troy Road. Tradition says that the church was organized in 1878, but this has not been verified. Mt. Hebron Church as it was then the same than the same action of the same transfer of the same t

The Pea River Association was organized either in 1877 or Rayborn. 1878 as both dates are given in certain records. It is possible that Mt. Hebron was organized in 1878 and did not apply for admission into the association until 1879. This would have been the case if it was organized after the annual association meeting in 1878. However, most of the early churches were organized during the records and lunch at the church at noon. Since this is probably the Centennial Year of the church, this can be considered the 100th Anniversary Celebration at Hebron. The during the summer after a revival meeting, many times in a bush arbor. Since many of the records have been lost we may never know the exact date. No list of charter members is available.

The first pastor of Mt. Hebron appears to have been Elder John Bradley, who was likely instrumental in the organization of the church. He was serving as pastor in 1881 and continued in that position until 1885. J. J. Macon became pastor in 1886 and that position until 1885. J. J. Macon became pastor in 1886 and served for two years or more. He was followed by John Bradley Rev. Charles Sunday of Zion Chapel as the speaker.

Other early pastors were J. W. Brooks, J. D. Allen, Allen Cumbie, J. M. Loflin, J. W. Reynolds, I. H. Johnson, and J. M. Loflin a second time, Loflin was followed by Eddie Johnson who lived until 1950 or later. The next pastor was T. J. Floyd, followed by Lonnie Renfroe, and Ben Ogletree.

was followed by N. T. Watson, H. J. Butts, Z. R. Fuller, W. E. Fuller, T. W. Wilkins, T. H. Bundy, and W. C. Barr.

Douglas Green, Mrs. J. C. Paul, Mrs. Dwight Green, Mrs. Vernon Napper, Mrs. Grace Green, and Mrs. Mildred Paul.

The first building at Mt. Hebron was made of logs. The logs were cut, and hauled to the site with ox teams. The logs were then split and smoothed with a broadaxe. They were notched at the corners so as to make an almost solid wall. In some buildings of this type auger holes were bored through the logs at the corners, and seasoned oak pegs were driven into the holes to hold the logs together. Homemade wooden shutters covered the

A building of this type can still be seen in the old Claybank Church just off the Fort Rucker road in the edge of Ozark. That building was said to have been erected in 1852.

The building at Mt. Hebron was covered with boards made from short sections of tree trunks, and rived out with froes. The church seats were also made of split logs with auger holes bored in them to insert portions of tree limbs for legs. Seated on such benches the congregation was not likely to go to sleep even during the long sermons.

When sawmills became available the log building was replaced with a frame building. This building also had homemade windows and door shutters. Later the building was remodeled or rebuilt and glass windows were added.

The most recent wooden building which is pictured with this article, represented a type that was frequently used about seventy-five years ago, when lumber was cheap and plentiful. The walls were high with a steep roof, and an arched ceiling inside. This made for excellent acoustics and added volume to the singing.

The porch across the front with the wide steps allowed the people a place to visit and talk before and after the services. It will be noticed that there were two doors in the front of the building. This was because the men sat on one side of the building, and the ladies on the other during services. In some church buildings in earlier days there was a wall as high as the pews down the middle and persons entering the doors had to sit on the respective sides. Thus the men and ladies were separated.

Later pastors were W. H. Tew, J. W. Stewart, T. C. White, J. L. Henderson, B. S. Franklin, who was pastor at Elba First Church, and most likely preached at Hebron on one Sunday afternoon a month. After Franklin Eddie Johnson returned for a second time. Then Lonnie Renfroe came again as pastor.

The next pastor was Cullen Andrews of Enterprise who served for several years. Clayton Fuller of Headland served from 1944-1946, and was followed by Ellis Bush. Other recent pastors nclude George Howard Jones, who came from Washington County, and later married a girl from the Hebron community; Ben Benson, Sam Smith, Hudson Dismukes, Elmer Davis, Frank Lowery, Tommy Wilkes, Frank Meyers, H. B. Yates, W. M. Rayborn, and Roger Wilkins.

W. M. Rayborn returned as pastor in 1964 and has served since that time, being the present pastor. A few years ago, the church constructed a nice new brick pastorium across the road from the church building, and the Rayborns are living in the community. He might be considered the first resident pastor of the church brick building. Later a spire was added to the building. More This addition includes a fellowship hall, kitchen, rest rooms, and other facilities. Heating and air-conditioning were added, and carpet and cushioned pews installed.

In April of 1961, the old building was damaged by a storm and a little later it was torn down and replaced with a nice new
